The President's Column

I'm writing this in the depths of Winter. A huge snow storm has finally turned the Catskills into a Winter wonderland. Apparently getting to the summit here is currently more difficult than the high peaks of the Adirondacks! Most of us know conditions like that are short lived. We have temps in the 50's predicted for next week. The powder we have now could turn to slush in a matter of hours. Then we will have ice after that. Such are the vagaries of hiking in the North East. Conditions are constantly changing. Spring time hikers can find it's warm and sunny in the morning down in the valley. But as they ascend, deep, 'rotten' snow up high in the firs, slows their progress considerably. The much cooler temperatures make them wish they'd brought heavier jackets.

What am I getting at? We should always be prepared for the best and the worst the mountains can throw at us. I frequently meet hikers who are not even carrying a pack! Sometimes I want to ask them if it fell off. Other times I try to get in a gentle reminder about safety. Hunters have to take a Safety Course before they can go out in the woods. Maybe Hikers should as well!

Since you will probably be reading this as Winter comes to a close, let me congratulate everyone who has finished the Winter 35 this past season! We hope to see many of you at the annual dinner. It may not be too late to sign up, check the end of this Newsletter for details..

Hiker's Bookshelf

With a publication date of March 15, this issue of the Catskill Canister likely finds you finished with your winter peaks and eagerly planning your summer adventures. Catskill veteran hiker Erik Schlimmer's latest book, Blue Line to Blue Line: The Official Guide to the Trans Adirondack Route, may give just the inspiration you seek.

A route, not a trail, requires some explanation, and Schlimmer is thorough in his treatment of just what makes the Trans Adirondack Route (TAR) a route. Among the unique features of this book and route are the choices Schlimmer makes in taking the hiker from blue line to blue line – north to south (or vice versa) from park boundary to park boundary. To a peak bagger, devising a route that does anything other than traverse as many high points as possible is heresy, but the TAR eschews the peaks, crossing only 3 in its 230+ miles. But the purpose here was to create a route – on trails, logging roads, snowmobile trails, and roads as necessary – that led the hiker from blue line to blue line, crossing the Park in a way that maximizes the unique wilderness experience available when one steps off the high peak highways. Catskill readers, prepare to have your curiosity piqued.

Schlimmer is a good writer and a great storyteller, illustrating points with anecdotes rather than a terse list of bullet points, although he does make judicious use of concise lists when appropriate. The treatment of Leave No Trace ethics, and following DEC regulations is relevant to Catskill hiking as well, and very much in line with the recent efforts by the 3500 Club board to improve our safety and stewardship efforts. Throughout the route description, pull-out text boxes entitled “There’s More To It” offer additional historical or natural history details, or charming stories (don’t miss “Hitch Up, Mathilda”).

Blue Line to Blue Line is engaging reading, but for those of you “Type A” reader-hikers, you may find yourselves skimming or even skipping section not immediately relevant to the route itself. Experienced backpackers and veteran Cat-Dackers, for example, might flip to page 87 to get right into the route information. I do recommend that you flip back and read through Schlimmer's detailed introductions and stories. I promise that the section of giardia will raise your awareness and your eyebrows.

As a trail (sorry, route) guide, Blue Line to Blue Line provides everything you need to know to tackle this project. Logistics are covered, as are all the details any hiker or backpacker might need regarding weather, seasons, gear, DEC regulations... the book is thorough, dense, charming, and readable. It is also small enough to carry. Well thought out and truly different, this is definitely a recommended addition to your hiking library.

Conservation Corner

A Note from our Conservation Chair, Carol White

We are asked to report the Hemlock Woolly Adelgid, which is fatal to hemlock trees. Visit www.dec.ny.gov/docs/lands\_forests\_pdf/hwabrochure.pdf to view the Hemlock Woolly Adelgid Brochure \(PDF\) and the Hemlock Woolly Adelgid Survey Form \(PDF\) to report what you see. If you notice trees that are losing their needles or where needles are no longer deep green but grayish green, look for a white woolly substance on the undersides of twigs near the base of hemlock needles. These are the eggs that can remain on needles year round after they hatch. The brown crawlers themselves are difficult to spot because they are the size of this period. View photos at www.dec.ny.gov/animals/7250.html and compare with similar, non-harmful insects' presence. Call DEC's forest pest hotline at 1-866-640-0652, or email photos.

This insect was confirmed in the lower Hudson Valley in the 1980s and spread into the Catskills and Capital Region. Originating in Asia, trees there are resistant to the adelgid, but here, infestation is usually fatal to the host after several years. It is now invading southern New York and the Finger Lakes region..

Rambles and Brambles: Hike Schedule April—June 2014

Assumed Risk: Hiking involves certain inherent risks and persons participating do so at their own risk. In cool weather, hike participants should avoid cotton clothing, as it retains dampness and the resulting chill can result in hypothermia, which can lead to death. Instead, wear (and have available in your pack) garments of wool or fleece. Silk or polypropylene make the best base layers, as they tend to wick moisture away from the body. Hats, gloves, and a headlamp must be part of the standard early spring kit. Ice and snow can still be found unexpectedly in these peaks. In early spring, if there is any doubt about the conditions that may be encountered, each hiker is strongly advised to bring snowshoes and full crampons to the trailhead; the leader may advise that these do not have to be taken on the hike, but be aware that while there may be bare ground at the trailhead, there is often very significant ice and snow as the elevation increases, which could result in those improperly prepared being sent back. Anyone not properly equipped may be refused permission to participate, at the leader's absolute discretion. Don't be seduced by buds on the trees at the trailhead, early spring in the Catskills is not to be treated lightly.

Rating System: Please be advised that the hikes listed herein would most likely be rated more difficult by clubs who hike in non-mountainous terrains

Private Property: All Catskill 3500 Club hikes respect "No Trespassing" signs and the owners' wishes in such regards; leaders shall obtain permission to cross private property when so required.

Volunteer to Lead: If you are a member of the Club please consider becoming a hike leader. Just contact Manuel Peraza [outings@catskill-3500-club.org ; 718-698-4422 (7 p.m.-9 p.m.)], and he will arrange to add you to the low-volume private Yahoo list through which hikes are coordinated. You will be contacted via this means when hikes are needed.

Group Size: All Club bushwhacks are limited to 12 participants including the leaders. The DEC limits group size to 12 in the Wilderness Areas. Accordingly, all Club hikes allow no more than 12 participants. If in doubt, please contact the leader.

Letters to the Editor

Avery L. Smith, DVM
avlesm@aol.com

January 22, 2014

Dear Editor:

Sixty five years ago, Ursus americana, the American black bear, was a figment of this, then, ten year olds imagination. Today, one can roam the Catskill Mountains and with luck have a rare bear citing. If not, look closely, the evidence of their reticent, lumbering, majestic presence surrounds you everywhere.

Bear population recovery has been well managed and remarkable, so much so, the NYSDEC has formulated a ten year Bear Plan to ratchet down that growth here in the Catskill Park. The plan calls for a 16 day mid September hunting season. As a life long outdoorsman and woodlands advocate, I oppose this aspect of the plan strategy for the following reasons.

- 1) This plan allows legions of outdoorsman, of every stripe, age and level of prowess, into direct and indirect contact and potential conflict, during one of the year's most atmospherically ideal outing months.
- 2) Hunters don't want the impediment of dense foliage, warm weather or herds of, on and off-trail, hiker activity.
- 3) Hikers don't want hunter encounters, proximity to discharging firearms, competition for lean-to access or wounded bear encounters.

If the hunting must begin, there is a simple solution. Keep the regular bear season on schedule with No Bag Limit for one season. Reassess the population, based on bear kill statistics and readjust the bag limit accordingly for the following season. If this system fails to meet objectives, simply extend the season incrementally on both ends, only, until goals are met.

The results: No conflicts and everyone, EXCEPT the BEARS, get their fair share of prime time in the woods.

Respectfully, Avery Smith #119

Diving on Shipwrecks Catskill 3500 Annual Dinner Presentation

Shipwreck explorer and Catskill 3500er, Jim Kennard, will be the evening speaker at the 2014 Catskill 3500 Annual Dinner on April 5th. Jim's presentation will chronicle his journey in shipwreck exploration in the inland waters of the northeast including the discovery of the 1780 British warship HMS Ontario in Lake Ontario. Jim will be showing a video presentation of this discovery.

Ever wonder what lies just off Kingston in the Hudson River? We will also get a look at some of the never before views of the shipwrecks and bottom formations just offshore from where we will be dining. It will be an exciting evening of underwater discovery and exploration in the deep depth waters of New York State.

Jim Kennard has been diving and exploring the lakes in the northeast since 1970 and has found over 200 shipwrecks in the Great Lakes, Lake Champlain, NY Finger Lakes and in the Hudson, Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. In 1983 he discovered a unique horse powered ferryboat in Lake Champlain. National Geographic featured the ferryboat in their October 1989 issue. In May 2008 Jim Kennard and Dan Scoville discovered the 233 year old British warship HMS Ontario, the oldest shipwreck ever found in the Great Lakes and, in September 2008, a rare 200 year old "dagger-board" schooner. Kennard is a Fellow member of The Explorers Club. To view some of the shipwrecks that Jim and his team of explorers have discovered go to his website: www.shipwreckworld.com

by John Slechta and Ralph Coy

We both began our working careers, about a million years ago, in the military where the time honored rule was “Never volunteer!” However, we’re a little wiser now. Not only did we volunteer to be Fire Tower Interpreters on Hunter Mountain, but four years later we’ve never had cause to regret the decision. It’s one of the most rewarding and fun experiences either of us has ever had.

The Catskill Fire Tower Project, which is administered by the Catskill Center in cooperation with the NY DEC, made this possible. Interpreters man the five Catskill fire towers (Hunter, Balsam Lake, Tremper, Overlook, and Red Hill) every weekend from Memorial Day to Columbus Day.

A huge perk, on the four mountains with summit cabins, is that interpreters are permitted to stay overnight in the cabins (on Tremper there is a nearby lean-to). Although some Interpreters do it as a “day job,” most of us backpack up to the summit and stay one or more nights. The cabins are stocked with many essential items which significantly lighten our packs.

It’s a privilege to stay in a cabin in relative luxury and to experience the peace and serenity that surrounds us every morning and evening. However the biggest reward comes from our interactions with the hikers who visit the summit.

We meet people with all levels of hiking experience from those on their first hikes to 3500 Club members who've completed the 420 Grid multiple times. They include folks of all ages, genders, backgrounds, and nationalities. Virtually everyone has something interesting to say and/or a good question to ask. Most people sincerely thank us for opening the tower and spending our time with them. Being an Interpreter is a tremendously rewarding and fun way to spend a weekend!

We often tell people that although we're volunteers, we'd gladly pay to be Interpreters!

One life lesson we've learned from this job is that it's much easier to make new friends than one might think. Often people "march" into the summit clearing looking straight ahead and avoiding eye contact with the strangers hanging out there. Regardless, we greet every single person the same way with a cheerful: "Hello and welcome to the summit!" Miraculously we are all soon interacting like old friends as we share our hiking experiences, aspirations, successes, and failures with one another.

You may be wondering what a Fire Tower Interpreter "interprets." We're not really sure! It's basically a PR job in which:

- We unlock the tower cabs and invite people up

Once you enter a tower cab it's a whole different world out there. There is simply no comparison between the 360° view from the tower windows and the view from either the top of the stairs, or from anywhere else in the Catskills. Often the expression on the face of someone who looks out the windows for the first time is one of excitement and wonder, even someone who hated the trip up the stairs.

- We identify the peaks, point out landmarks, and do our best to answer questions. In addition we often learn a lot from many of our visitors who frequently have more and different hiking experiences than we do.

- We discuss the history of the Catskill Park, the towers, and the paid fire observers who manned them until the 1980s. We explain what conditions were like in the Catskills over 100 years ago when these towers were constructed.
- We invite people into the cabins to see how the observers of yore lived when they stayed on the summits.
- Occasionally we assist an unprepared or unlucky hiker with water, some basic first aid, or directions.

So, if you've hiked the Catskills but have never been inside a fire tower cab or a summit cabin, come on up! We can't guarantee every tower will be open on every weekend, but it's a pretty good bet.

If you'd like to help us guarantee to have all the summits manned, please consider volunteering. New Interpreters are always needed and welcome. The training is easy and is usually conducted by a Volunteer Coordinator during an orientation hike to the tower. You can choose the mountain you want to work on and you can request the dates you want to work.

For hikers and Interpreters alike, each of the five locations has its own unique appeal:

- To experience virtual non-stop hiker traffic from about 11 AM to 4 PM, pick Hunter or Overlook. The other peaks usually afford a more relaxed experience.
- Hunter and Tremper are the most challenging hikes, whereas Red Hill is the easiest.
- Red Hill's trail and summit clearing are beautiful and charming features of the southwestern Catskills. Although relatively unknown to many 3500 Club members, the area is well worth visiting.
- Balsam Lake's cabin is set up as a museum of fire tower history and natural lore.
- Tremper is the summit most in need of volunteers. It is ideal for someone looking for a one day per weekend commitment and/or a solitary experience. Since there is no cabin its feasible for a lone Interpreter to interact with everyone who visits the summit.

On Hunter our experience has been that the team approach works best. Typically one of us stays on the ground to chat with arriving hikers and invite them to check out the cabin. The other person stays up in the tower with folks who arrived earlier. It's ideal if you can volunteer with another person, but it's not required.

For lots more information go online to www.catskillfiretowers.org.

To volunteer, or if you have questions, call Jonathan Mogelever at 845-586-2611, or email him at jmogelever@catskillcenter.org. You can also address comments or questions to the authors at slechtajl@earthlink.net.

If you decide to volunteer, Jonathan will put you in contact with the Volunteer Coordinator for your desired peak.

Go ahead, volunteer! You've got nothing to lose and a world of great experiences to gain!
